

to certain conclusions. After going through it, may pass on strictures or criticisms. That is another matter. The point is, even prior to that when the Government came to know of it, did it bring it to the notice of the House? Or at least immediately after the Public Accounts Committee examined it, was this brought to the notice of this House?

MADAM SPEAKER.—Expenditure in excess of the voted grants is not therefore made by way of supplementary grants but in the form of excess grants and the demands for excess grants have to be presented to the House in the session in which the Public Accounts Committee presents its reports thereon or in the following session. The Hon'ble Finance Minister may now move the demands for excess grants.
